

Name _____

Date _____

Commas in a Series

When you list several things in a sentence, you must divide them with commas.

Example: Jacob painted his dog red, yellow, purple, and pink.

A. Use commas to divide things that are written in series in each sentence.

1. I like to eat ketchup mustard and relish on my ice cream.
2. Karly wears her diamond-studded tiara to school on Mondays Wednesdays and Fridays.
3. Pedro hid a pizza a bag of gold and twenty-seven dirty socks under his bed.
4. Mother always packs a worm sandwich a bag of frog legs and a dead slug in Tom's lunch.
5. Do you know why John Paul George and Ringo are famous?

★ Answer #5 for extra credit _____

Commas are also used to divide consecutive adjectives.

Example: The cute, little kitten chased the big dog.

B. Here is another bunch of sentences in need of commas.

1. The delicate little princess belched loudly.
2. The police officer was not impressed with Peter's fast red car.
3. I don't know why that silly little spider keeps trying to crawl up the water spout.
4. The big strong superhero was afraid of the itsy bitsy spider.
5. Wasn't this a fun exciting and interesting worksheet?

The word
"consecutive"
means one after another.

