XXIII. INTRODUCTION

This document includes Academic Standards for History that describes what students should know and be able to do in four areas:

◊ 8.1 Historical Analysis and Skills Development
◊ 8.2 Pennsylvania History
◊ 8.3 United States History
◊ 8.4 World History

The History Standards describe what students should know and be able to do third through twelfth grade. They reflect an understanding of historical events and the application of historical thinking skills in viewing the human record. These academic standards provide an organizing content for schools.

To support the intent of the Public School Code and Chapter 4, this document creates four standard categories. The four standard categories were designed to meld historical thinking (8.1. Historical Analysis and Skills Development) with historical understanding (8.2. Pennsylvania History, 8.3. United States History, and 8.4. World History) to describe what students should know and be able to do.

Standard category 8.1. Historical Analysis and Skills Development provides the basis for learning the content within the other three standard categories. The intent of the history standards is to instill in each student an ability to develop historical comprehension, to evaluate historical interpretation and to understand and conduct historical research. One should not view these standards as a list of facts to recall, rather, as stated in the opening phrase to the Pennsylvania, United States and World standard categories, “Pennsylvania’s public schools shall teach, challenge and support every student to realize his or her maximum potential and to acquire the knowledge and skills needed to analyze the interaction of cultural, economic, geographic, political and social relations.”

These standards provide a history framework to permit every school and teacher to create planned instruction. The content within this document is general and does not represent a course or even a portion thereof. Every school is encouraged to move beyond these standards. These standards are merely a starting point for the study of history. Planned instruction to meet these standards is required; however, the methodology, resources and time are neither recommended nor implied. Having established the need to move beyond recall, it is the intent of these standards to give students throughout Pennsylvania a common cultural literacy.
Pennsylvania, United States, and World History standard categories use the same four standard statements to guide teachers in developing planned instruction. The four standard statements include the following: (a) social, political, cultural and economic contributions of groups and individuals; (b) historical documents, artifacts and places; (c) continuity and change; (d) conflict and cooperation among social groups and organizations. Some standard statements have bulleted items known as standard descriptors. The standard descriptors are items within the document to illustrate and enhance the standard statement. Each standard descriptor suggests content that may be addressed. These are not all encompassing and local planned instruction is not limited to these examples.

A glossary is included to assist the reader in understanding terminology contained in the standards.
8.1. Historical Analysis and Skills Development

Historical Analysis and Skills Development are learned through and applied to the standards statements and their descriptors via Pennsylvania History (8.2.), United States History (8.3.) and World History (8.4.).
